

Cultivate your political skills

Duration: 1 day

Audience: Pour tous

Who is this training for?

Managers, supervisors, team leaders, and professionals called upon to influence without direct hierarchical authority.

Training objectives

At the end of the training, participants will be able to :

- Analyse their organisation from the perspective of formal and informal political dynamics.
- Identify key actors, their interests, areas of influence and interdependencies.
- Carry out a preliminary mapping of their political network.
- Evaluate their personal levers of influence (credibility, visibility, relationships).
- Adapt their political style according to the contexts and the interlocutors.
- Choose and apply relevant influencing approaches to support their ideas and projects.

Summary

"In organizations, power and influence are not anomalies: they are inescapable realities that must be understood rather than denied." Jeffrey Pfeffer, Managing with Power

Course outline

Definition of political meanin

Knowledge of one's environment

- Issues/orientations/priorities
- Formal and informal rules
- Knowledge of the actors

The political network

-

Definition and mapping

- Practices for developing and maintaining one's network

Managing rumours and one's image

- The importance of managing one's image
- The three types of rumours
- Practices for managing one's image and having an impact

Political styles

- Two poles : Promotion of ideas and content and emphasis on people and their concerns
- Dangers of extreme positions • Developing one's ability to adapt

Levers and the exercise of influence

- Personal power, credibility and visibility
- Approaches to influence
- Methodology: analysis of actors and choice of the approach to influence

Approach and methodology

The training is based on an interactive and reflective approach, combining conceptual inputs, group exchanges, analyses of real situations and practical exercises. Participants are invited to transpose the concepts to their own organisational context in order to foster learning that is directly transferable to professional practice.

Recommendations

Before the training, participants are asked to reflect on one or two real-life professional situations in which they have had to exert influence, or currently need to do so (e.g., advancing an idea, gaining buy-in, navigating resistance, dealing with informal dynamics).