Summary

In an ever-changing professional context, human resources (HR) professionals and partners are called upon to go beyond their traditional role of operational management to become strategic and influential players. Organizations rely on these people to support transformation, influence decisions and embody a high value-added posture. This workshop allows PARHs to strengthen their relational, emotional and strategic skills. Through interactive activities, role-playing and peer-to-peer exchanges, they will refine their posture, develop their impact and actively contribute to sustainable and human organizational performance.
